	Personal Education (including Citizenship Curriculum)	Relationships Education	Health Education	Sex Education
Y3	What rights and responsibilities do we have? Learning about rights, responsibilities and citizenship by exploring children's rights, human rights and why they matter. Pupils explore how responsible choices support people and the environment, including reducing waste and understanding how local councils help meet the needs of their communities. What careers do people choose and why? Exploring careers, aspirations and equality by learning about different jobs, why people choose them and how careers can change over time. Pupils consider how interests, strengths and pay can influence career choices, while recognising and challenging gender stereotypes in the workplace.	What helps us feel safe and included? Recognising their own strengths, qualities and boundaries, pupils develop self-worth and confidence in expressing themselves respectfully. Pupils explore how families and friendships provide support, practise ways to repair friendships and identify different types of bullying and how to respond to them.	How can I take care of my mind and body? Examining the connection between the mind and body by recognising and describing a wide range of emotions and feelings. Pupils identify habits that support healthy sleep, consider the impact of bullying on wellbeing and learn how and where to access support when needed. How can we prevent illness and injury and respond if they happen? Investigating how healthy habits, medicines and healthcare help prevent illness and protect wellbeing. Pupils apply their understanding by making informed decisions about hygiene, sun safety and seeking medical help, while practising basic first aid and learning when to call 999.
Y4	How can I spend money wisely? Learning about managing money by examining the different ways people pay for goods and services, including cash and cards. Pupils develop an understanding of budgeting, value for money and financial decision-making, while considering how money can influence people's feelings and choices.	What signs help me recognise what is safe or unsafe? This unit equips students with essential personal safety skills by teaching them to recognize visual and emotional warning signs of danger across various environments—including online, on the road, near water, and at home—while empowering them to plan ahead, prevent accidents, and confidently use strategies to exit or seek help in unsafe situations. How can we respect each other? Examining respectful and disrespectful behaviour by considering how actions and expectations can vary in different settings. Pupils develop strategies for building trust and resolving friendship	How will my body and emotions change as I grow up? This unit equips students to navigate adolescence by normalising the physical and emotional changes of puberty while reinforcing body autonomy, personal boundaries, and the critical skills needed to identify unsafe adult behaviour and seek help. How can I make healthy choices? Understanding how healthy choices support both physical and mental wellbeing by exploring exercise, nutrition and hydration. Pupils identify strategies for developing a growth mindset and recognise how acts of kindness and helping others can have a positive impact on themselves and

		challenges, practise responding to bullying and learn how stereotypes can negatively affect people and communities.	those around them.
Y5	How can we make a difference in our communities and beyond? Developing active citizenship skills through exploring how people can make a difference in their communities and beyond. Pupils learn how individuals, community and pressure groups, local councillors and MPs can influence change in government. How can we be in control of our money? Exploring money management by learning how needs and wants can influence spending decisions and financial choices. Pupils develop budgeting skills, investigate borrowing and interest, and identify ways to manage money safely, including recognising the risks associated with online spending and gambling.	Why are healthy relationships important? Investigating identity, values and relationships by considering how experiences and beliefs can influence choices and behaviour. Pupils examine the role of commitment and support within families, identify where to seek help if home feels unsafe and develop strategies for building and maintaining healthy friendships.	How can I support my mind and body as I grow? Understanding how everyday choices can support physical and emotional wellbeing by exploring nutrition, physical activity and self-regulation. Pupils learn to read food labels, identify ways to build more movement into their routines and practise strategies for managing emotions and seeking support when needed. How can I manage the changes to my body and emotions as I grow up? Understanding the physical and emotional changes that happen during puberty, including their impact on feelings, behaviour and relationships. Pupils explore personal hygiene, periods, kindness, respect and personal boundaries, and identify trusted sources of support during puberty.
Y6	How can we protect everyone's rights? Exploring human rights, laws and how the legal system helps uphold fairness in society. Pupils consider the consequences of breaking laws, examine prejudice and discrimination, and identify ways to challenge stereotypes to promote equality and inclusion.	What does it mean to stand up for myself and others? Developing self-respect and resilience by setting personal goals and practising respectful behaviour in different situations, including online. Pupils build skills in setting boundaries, challenging stereotypes, discrimination and bullying, and recognising when to seek help from trusted adults and support services.	How do my choices today shape my future health? Learning about the importance of daily dental care and how choices about food, drink and lifestyle can affect long-term health and wellbeing. Pupils think critically about healthy eating, including calories as a unit of energy, and consider how habits and reactions can influence relationships, learning and future success. They also explore how a growth mindset can build confidence and resilience when facing challenges. How can I stay safe as I grow up? Developing understanding of hazards, risks and safer choices by exploring how to stay safe at home, outdoors, on public transport and around water. Pupils also consider how peer pressure, consent, boundaries and drug misuse can affect decisions and learn strategies to protect themselves and others.	How do people become parents and carers? Learning the correct terminology for body parts, pupils develop an understanding of how babies are conceived, grow during pregnancy and are born. They learn about consent and the legal age of consent, explore different types of families, and understand the responsibilities and lifelong commitment involved in having a baby.

Relationship Education

Year	Unit of Work	What is taught
Y3	What helps us feel safe and included?	- Family members often share responsibilities to keep the household running smoothly (e.g. doing chores/jobs, helping with younger siblings, or supporting with schoolwork). - Every family faces challenges. - That families should make them feel loved, safe and supported. - That different families might show love and spend time together in different ways. - Even though families may look very different, they usually have love and care for each other at their core. - That there are many different family types: families come in many forms and deserve to be treated with kindness. - That every family faces challenges at some point, and help is always available to children when they need it. - That apologising and discussing feelings can help solve problems and maintain good relationships. - Respect means treating others as you would like to be treated: with kindness and fairness. - Respecting boundaries helps keep relationships safe and healthy. - Self-respect means valuing yourself and treating yourself with kindness. - Trying new things, learning from mistakes and achieving goals can build confidence. - That there are different types of bullying, including physical, verbal and online (cyberbullying). - That bullying may target someone's appearance, beliefs or abilities.
Y4	What signs help me recognise what is safe or unsafe?	- Identify warning signs that something is unsafe in a range of everyday situations (personal, online, road, water, home), including signs you can see (e.g. road signs, "deep water" notices, hazard symbols) and signs you can feel (e.g. uncomfortable feelings, pressure from others, unsafe online behaviour). Demonstrate strategies to get help in or leave uncomfortable or unsafe situations. - Explain how recognising hazards and planning ahead can prevent accidents. - Choose safe places to cross roads and explain why (considering traffic, speed and visibility). - Explain key reasons why water can be dangerous, even for confident swimmers (e.g. because of depth, currents and cold temperatures). - Distinguish between helpful and harmful medicines and explain how to use medicine safely.
	How can we respect each other?	- To know within families, just like in all relationships, violence is not an acceptable way to deal with problems. - To know they do not have to be friends with everyone and others do not have to be friends with them, but everyone has the right to be treated with respect and kindness. - To know healthy friendships should help them feel included, valued and supported, especially during difficult times. - That many people experience feelings of loneliness at times. - They should trust people who are kind, honest and respect their boundaries, as this shows they are a good friend. - That apologising and discussing feelings can help solve problems and maintain good relationships. - That respectful disagreement is a normal part of healthy relationships. - That compromise and fairness are vital to any friendship. - Respect means treating others as you would like to be treated: with kindness and fairness. - Good manners are a way of showing respect to other people. - That different people may have different needs and preferences in the same space. - That respecting boundaries helps keep relationships safe and healthy. - Physical, emotional and digital boundaries are all important. - Some secrets are safe (e.g. a surprise party) but others may be unsafe if they make someone feel worried, scared or uncomfortable. - Being assertive means speaking up calmly and politely without being unkind.

		• That being kind does not mean always agreeing or giving in. • They cannot always have what they want and that others may want different things, so it is often important to find a compromise. • Disappointment and frustration are normal feelings and will pass. • Self-respect means valuing yourself and treating yourself with kindness. • A stereotype is an unfair assumption about a group of people, without considering them as individuals. • That people should be treated as individuals and with respect. • There may be times when they see or become aware of bullying happening to others, either in person or online. • They can speak to more than one trusted adult if the first person does not help or take action straightaway. • They should seek help if someone touches them or speaks to them in a way that feels wrong, including online; they feel pressured to do something unsafe or that they do not want to do, including online; and they see or hear something that worries them, even if it is not about them, including online.
Y5	Healthy relationships	• Discussing how the time spent with family may change as they get older and how these relationships might evolve. • Reflecting on how they support their families, how their families support them and why this is important to their families. • Exploring different ways parents or carers might protect and show care for their children. • Explaining why families are important and identifying the key features of positive family life (e.g. love, stability, care, protection, mutual respect). • Analysing how different contexts can influence family roles and relationships. • Recognising and respecting different types of families. • Recognising when a family relationship seems unsafe or unhealthy. • Considering the importance of friendships and the different ways friendships can enhance our lives. • Suggesting ways people can make new friends throughout their lives. • Recognising that friendships will change and evolve over time. • Describing some signs of unhealthy or unhappy friendships. • Resolving conflict using calm, assertive communication (e.g. 'I feel... when you...' statements). • Self-identifying when they need to adjust their behaviour. • Handling conflicts using a range of techniques such as negotiation, compromise and communicating their feelings. • Reflecting on conflicts or impulsive behaviour, recognising areas for improvement and working to avoid similar situations in the future. • Assertively challenging behaviour when it crosses a boundary, while staying respectful and safe. • Practising discussing disagreements without blaming others or over-reacting. • Recognising and celebrating their own identity and what makes them unique. • Practising ways to safely speak out against unfairness or exclusion, using respectful language. • Practising accessing help independently (e.g. with trusted adults, professionals or via Childline). • Recognising scenarios in which they should seek help from a trusted adult and those which can be safely dealt with themselves. • Explaining how they would report a concern confidently and clearly, in person or using school systems (e.g. talking to a trusted adult, using a worry box).
Y6	Standing up for Others Respect Challenging unfairness Seeking help	• Analysing how different contexts can influence family roles and relationships. • Resolving conflict using calm, assertive communication (e.g. "I feel... when you..." statements). • Handling conflicts using a range of techniques such as negotiation, compromise and communicating their feelings. • Using courtesy and manners in a variety of situations, such as being late, forgetting something, admitting a mistake, challenging something respectfully and in a new or unfamiliar environment. • Considering how to apply respectful behaviour across different settings (e.g. school, public places, online). • Practising adapting communication to show respect in formal and informal situations, with both peers and adults. • Recognising situations where their personal preferences may conflict with others' needs and responding appropriately (e.g. not playing music aloud on transport, being aware of body space).

	● Setting and maintaining clear personal boundaries in different situations (e.g. with friends, online, during disagreements). ● Assertively challenging behaviour when it crosses a boundary, while staying respectful and safe. ● Recognising when to stand up for themselves and when to compromise. ● Discussing real-life examples of balancing their own needs with those of others. ● Practising discussing disagreements without blaming others or over-reacting. ● Recognising and celebrating their own identity and what makes them unique. ● Reflecting on personal values and how these should influence their behaviour and choices. ● Setting personal goals and planning how to work towards them. ● Practising self-care strategies that support emotional wellbeing. ● Noticing where stereotypes might appear, such as in books, games, adverts or everyday language. ● Considering how people are shown respect or disrespect in real-life situations, such as in the news or sports. ● Practising ways to safely speak out against unfairness or exclusion, using respectful language. ● Analysing bullying scenarios and describing the different roles people play, including bystanders and upstanders. ● Demonstrating safe and effective ways to respond to bullying, both in person and online. ● Practising accessing help independently (e.g. with trusted adults, professionals or via Childline). ● Recognising scenarios in which they should seek help from a trusted adult and those which can be safely dealt with themselves. ● Explaining how they would report a concern confidently and clearly, in person or using school systems (e.g. talking to a trusted adult, using a worry box).

Health Education

Year	Unit of Work	What is taught
Y3	How can I take care of my mind and body?	- Many different feeling words can be used to identify and describe their emotions. - How to recognise and name the following emotions and associated feelings: happiness (confident, hopeful); sadness (disappointed); fear (nervous); anger (frustrated, jealous, guilty); disgust (offended); surprise (curious). - Their feelings and behavioural responses to a situation (e.g. bereavement, change) may differ from those of others. - Feelings can feel stronger or weaker depending on the situation. - Emotions and feelings can affect thoughts, decisions and behaviour. - Recognising and talking about feelings and emotions early can help us stay in control of our behaviour. - Taking care of their own feelings is part of staying healthy. Many people can struggle with their feelings and some of the signs might be seeming sad, crying, being unusually quiet, getting angry more easily or finding it hard to concentrate. - Trusted adults (including teachers and other school staff) are there to help with problems, whether big or small. - Seeking help early can make a significant difference for someone struggling with their feelings or mood. Children of their age should get between 9–12 hours of sleep every night. Poor sleep can affect concentration and mood, making people feel grumpy, worried or upset more easily. - When someone is bullied repeatedly, they may start to believe the negative things said about them.
	How can we prevent illness and injury and respond if they happen?	To be confirmed (2026/27)
Y4	How will my body and emotions change as I grow up?	- Describing some physical changes in adolescence and beginning to be aware of the changes puberty brings. - Describing some emotional changes that happen during adolescence. - Communicating personal boundaries clearly (e.g. “I’m not comfortable with that”). - Unkind or negative comments about someone’s body can affect how they feel about themselves and that it is important to treat all bodies with respect. - Their bodies will change as they grow into adults and these changes happen at different times and rates for everyone, which is completely normal. - As their bodies change during puberty, their emotions and feelings may also change and that can sometimes feel difficult to manage (e.g. experiencing mood swings). The correct names for the external parts of the body that may change in adolescence (e.g. breasts, armpits, Adam’s apple, pubic hair). - They should talk to trusted adults if they have any worries or concerns, including around body changes and growing up. - Their body belongs to them and that they can say no to any touch or behaviour that makes them feel uncomfortable, even from someone they know. The correct terms for private body parts, including the scrotum and nipples. - Signs that an adult may be unsafe (e.g. they are ignoring ‘no’, they are asking you to keep secrets, offering gifts when it is not a special occasion, asking you for help instead of another adult). - They can speak to more than one trusted adult if the first person does not help or take action straightaway/ - They should seek help if:

		○ Someone touches them or speaks to them in a way that feels wrong, including online. ○ They feel pressured to do something unsafe or that they don't want to do, including online. ○ They see or hear something that worries them, even if it's not about them, including online.
	How can I make healthy choices?	● Sleep, hobbies, exercise and time with others can all help them to look after their feelings. ● Some simple ways that they can help others each day. ● Some simple healthy choices they can make to incorporate physical activity into their normal day (for example, walking or cycling to school, taking the stairs, carrying their own bag). ● About opportunities in their community to be physically active. ● Some activities make their heart beat faster, their body warmer, and their breathing heavier, and this means their body is working hard and getting stronger. ● Physical activity strengthens their heart, lungs, muscles and bones. ● Being active helps with coordination, balance and energy levels. ● Sitting still for long periods (for example, lots of screen time with no breaks) is not good for their bodies and can cause low energy. ● A balanced diet includes a variety of food groups. ● Different food groups do different jobs in the body. ● Too much sugar, salt or fat can cause health problems over time, and these are commonly found in processed foods. ● They should aim to eat at least five portions of fruit or vegetables a day to get the vitamins and minerals they need. ● They should aim to drink 1.5 litres (6–8 glasses) of water a day to stay hydrated. ● Nutrients are the helpful parts in food that the body needs to grow, stay healthy and have energy. ● Processed foods are foods that have been changed or added to, like turning potatoes into crisps or fruit into fruit-flavoured sweets. ● Natural or less processed foods usually have more nutrients.
Y5	How can I manage the changes to my body and emotions as I grow up?	● Describing in greater detail the physical changes that occur during puberty, including those specific to boys and girls in adolescence. ● To know that everyone's body changes during puberty in different ways and at different times and that making comments about these changes can be unkind and harmful. ● To know the correct scientific names for the external and internal reproductive organs (e.g. uterus, fallopian tubes, ovaries, testicles). ● To know that the stage in which an individual changes from a child to an adult is called 'puberty' and this happens over a period of time as more hormones are released into the body. ● To know that puberty is the process of preparing the male and female body for reproduction, as part of the human life cycle. ● To know that many people find the changes during puberty difficult to deal with and should be supported and treated with kindness. ● To know that good personal hygiene is important during puberty and into adulthood to stay clean, healthy and comfortable. ● To know how to manage hygiene during a period, including how often to change sanitary products, how to dispose of them safely and how to keep the body clean and comfortable. ● To know they can seek support from a trusted adult when they have questions or concerns about their changing body, relationships or growing up. ● To know some simple ways people can manage period pain (e.g. rest, heat, gentle movement or asking a trusted adult for help). ● Describing the stages of the menstrual cycle. ● One of the physical changes that happens to female bodies when they go through puberty is starting their period (menstrual cycle). ● During a period a small amount of blood leaves the body from the vagina each month. ● Periods can start unexpectedly and there are ways to manage them, such as wearing pad or period pants and asking a trusted adult for help. ● To know that an erection is when the penis becomes firmer or harder, that this is temporary and that it usually goes away on its own.

	How can I support my mind and body as I grow?	• Poor nutrition can lead to tiredness, illness, low mood or long-term health problems. • Nutritional labels show calories, fat, sugar and salt, which help people make informed choices. • Others may try to influence their food choices (e.g. through packaging, advertising or online messaging) but they should try to make informed choices based on what their bodies need. • As people get older, they can stay active in different ways (e.g. walking to work, going to the gym, dancing, gardening) to support health and wellbeing. • Physical activity helps mental wellbeing by boosting mood and reducing stress. • Children their age should get at least one hour of moderate to vigorous activity every day. • Being active improves physical health by strengthening the body, improving fitness and helping them stay at a healthy weight. • Moderate activity means moving enough to raise your heart rate and feel a bit out of breath (e.g. brisk walking, cycling or playground games). • Vigorous activity (e.g. running, swimming, team sports, dancing) makes people breathe harder and sweat more. • The difference between emotions and feelings and that while emotions happen automatically in their bodies, they can choose how to interpret and respond to them. • How to describe the following emotions and associated feelings: happiness (content, optimistic); sadness (pessimistic, excluded, grief); fear (insecure, anxious, stressed, pressured, overwhelmed); anger (betrayed); disgust; and surprise (startled). • It is important to speak openly about emotions and their associated feelings. • Reflecting on their emotions, feelings and behaviour helps them understand themselves and others better and reframe any negative thoughts and feelings. • Mental health affects how people feel, think, behave and cope with life. • The importance of making time to prioritise their own emotional health. • Spending time outdoors can help people feel calm, focused and more connected to the world around them. • It is important to regulate responses to emotions so they do not control feelings and actions. • Just like physical health, everyone has mental health and it can change over time. • Many people experience mental ill health, and support is available. • Some signs that someone might need support with their mental health (e.g. acting differently, feeling down, withdrawing from others, getting upset easily, losing interest in things they usually enjoy, etc). • Different professionals support mental health in different ways, such as listening, giving advice, offering therapy or helping them access other support. • There are free, confidential services they can contact (e.g. Childline) if they are worried, upset or need someone to talk to.
Y6	How do my choices today shape my future health?	• Flossing or using interdental brushes helps remove food and plaque from between the teeth where a toothbrush cannot reach. • Most toothpastes in the UK contain fluoride, which helps to protect teeth by strengthening enamel and repairing early signs of tooth decay. • Visiting the dentist every six months helps spot problems early before they become serious or painful. • Some of the problems that can arise from poor dental health (e.g. tooth decay, fillings, extractions or bad breath). • Eating well supports both physical and mental health, including energy levels, mood and concentration. • Poor nutrition can lead to tiredness, illness, low mood or long-term health problems. • Nutritional labels show calories, fat, sugar and salt, which help people make informed choices. • Calories are a measure of energy in food. • Others may try to influence their food choices (e.g. through packaging, advertising or online messaging) but they should try to make informed choices based on what their bodies need. • Sleep and rest support mental wellbeing by helping the brain recover, reducing stress and improving mood and focus. • Lack of sleep can reduce energy levels, leading to a more inactive lifestyle and poorer general wellbeing. • Some activities and habits can have a negative impact on emotional wellbeing (e.g. excessive screen time, staying inside for long periods, excessive unhealthy food, extended inactivity or insufficient time with friends and family). • Being active improves physical health by strengthening the body, improving fitness and helping them stay at a healthy weight. • Physical activity helps mental wellbeing by boosting mood and reducing stress.

		• Obesity means carrying too much body fat, which can lead to health problems such as tiredness, joint pain and risk of illness. • Not being active can lead to long-term health problems, including obesity and poor mental wellbeing. • Having sugary snacks or drinks between meals is more harmful than having them at mealtimes. • Feeling tired can lead to unhealthy eating, such as choosing more sugary or high-fat foods for energy. • Sugary or fatty foods can be part of a healthy diet if eaten in moderation, alongside plenty of nutritious foods. • The difference between emotions and feelings and that while emotions happen automatically in their bodies, they can choose how to interpret and respond to them. • It is important to regulate responses to emotions so they do not control feelings and actions. • Reflecting on their emotions, feelings and behaviour helps them understand themselves and others better and reframe any negative thoughts and feelings. • How to describe the following emotions and associated feelings: happiness (content, optimistic); sadness (pessimistic, excluded, grief); fear (insecure, anxious, stressed, pressured, overwhelmed); anger (betrayed); disgust; surprise (startled). • Friendships support mental health by helping people feel accepted, understood and less alone. • Helping others can improve their own wellbeing by releasing feel-good chemicals in the brain, building connection and giving them a sense of purpose. • People who are bullied may need support to feel better and rebuild their confidence. • Evidence shows that bullying has a negative impact on mental health now and in the future.
	How can I stay safe as I grow up?	• To know that pressure from peers or adults to keep secrets, send images, or say yes to something uncomfortable is a warning sign. • To know that someone asking them to keep conversations or photos private, especially online, may be unsafe. • To know that friendly behaviour (e.g. compliments, flattery, gifts) can sometimes be used to trick or manipulate people. • To know that not everyone online is who they say they are. • To know that the absence of permission or consent means that a situation is likely to be unsafe. • To know that they should always seek help if: – They experience or witness violence, threats or harm, either in person or online. – Someone tries to hurt them or others physically or emotionally, including online. – Someone touches them or talks to them in an unsafe or inappropriate way, including online. – They feel unsafe but are not sure why, or are unsure who to trust, including online. – They are worried about someone else being hurt or treated badly, including online. • To know some common safety issues when crossing the road or around railways. • To know that trains move faster than they appear and cannot stop quickly so it is dangerous to walk on or near railway lines. • To know that distractions such as friends, phones and headphones can make it harder to stay safe near the roads and railway. • To know what beach safety flags tell us about the conditions. • To know the water safety code (Stop and think, Stay together, call 999, float). • To know strategies for advocating for safe behaviour and resisting peer-pressure if others make unsafe choices. • To know that hazards can be physical (e.g. fire, machinery), chemical (e.g. substances) or behavioural (e.g. dares, peer pressure, online risks). • To know that some environments carry higher risk and require greater caution. • To know the day-to-day roles of the emergency services, including the coastguards, search-and-rescue, air ambulance and mountain rescue.* • To know that filming or sharing videos of emergencies can be unhelpful, harmful or illegal and that calling emergency services is the correct action.* • To know that drugs are substances that change how the body or mind works. • To know that some drugs (e.g. medicines) can help people when used properly and given by a trusted adult or doctor. • To know that some drugs are illegal (e.g. cannabis) and dangerous because they can harm physical and mental health. • To know that legal drugs and products like tobacco, alcohol, caffeine, energy drinks and medicines can still be harmful if misused, especially for children. • To know that many legal drugs (e.g. caffeine and nicotine) are addictive, meaning it is not easy to stop using them.
